- Provides a coherent debate on the application of both territorial autonomy and non-territory autonomy
- Examines and compares the use of territorial autonomy and non-territorial autonomy in Eastern Europe, North and Latin America, and South Asia
- Aids policy-makers in understanding the complexity of autonomy through a theoretical and practical discussion
- Offers a broader perspective on autonomy through an historic overview of the practice

Minority Accommodation through Territorial and Non-Territorial Autonomy explores the relationship between minority, territory, and autonomy, and how it informs our understanding of non-territorial autonomy (NTA) as a strategy for accommodating ethno-cultural diversity in modern societies. While territorial autonomy (TA) is defined by a claim to a certain territory, NTA does not assume that it is derived from any particular right to territory, allocated to groups that are dispersed among the majority while belonging to a certain self-identified notion of group identity. In seeking to understand the value of NTA as a public policy tool for social cohesion, this volume critically dissects the autonomy arrangements of both NTA and TA, and through a conceptual analysis and case-study examination of the two models, rethinks the viability of autonomy arrangements as institutions of diversity management.

Readership:

Academics and practitioners in the field of non-territorial autonomy and policy making; policy makers, civil servants, and political and social sciences students.
